

We are looking for participants for our study!

What is the study about?

- about the everyday life of children, learning and cooperation in kindergartens and schools
- to ask for the perspectives of the children and young people on their perception of (pre-)school
- and to find out where they can already participate in (pre-)school life and where they would like to be more involved

Who is to be interviewed in the study?

- Children who are in fourth, seventh and tenth grade
- Educators and teachers, interpreters and social workers

What is the approach of the study?

- We would like to conduct interviews and group discussions with the children and young people on questions regarding their daily life experiences at school
- We want to know how the children are doing and what their thoughts are on issues concerning participation and involvement in school processes
- There are no right or wrong answers
- Participation is voluntary. Your child only participates if you and he/she wants to
- The conversations are recorded as audio. The recording allows us to listen to your child to the fullest extent without having to take notes during the conversation. We can then use the audio recordings to evaluate the results. All recordings will be anonymized. The opinions of the children and the perspectives of the experts are then used to create training materials for the classroom.

For example, what kind of questions are the children and young people asked?

- What do you like about school?
- Where would you like to have more say? What would you like to do differently?
- What do you find difficult in everyday school life? What is challenging? What do you find easy? Where would you need more support?
- What does the perfect school look like for you?

What kind of questions are asked of educators and teachers?

- How do you, as a teacher, experience the participation of pupils in everyday school life?
- What are challenging situations for you in everyday school life?
